

Stage at the Casino

and a few compliments for Mr. Grant and Mr. Guiney, in charge of the house.

However, there will be no more burlesque at the Lyric, but a ten, twenty, thirty stock company will hold the boards next season.

Casino Park, remodelled, and in the words of Barnum, "bigger and better than ever," started off with a whirl on Wednesday night.

Zinn's Comedians are the real thing, and "Teezy-Wheezy" was as breezy a bit of music and fun as ever displayed any signs of life at the popular resort. The Casino has all the marks of permanent prosperity already, and the increasing crowds are somewhat of a testimonial to the worth of the lively company.

Director P. G. MacLean of the Orpheum Stock company apparently has some more face cards from the theatrical deck up his sleeve. Not content with giving Salt Lake one of the best stock companies to date he has gone one better and announces that for the presentation of "The Charity Ball" all next week he has engaged three more good people including Roy Clements, second lead; Elsie Gresham and Pearl Snyder. And still he is not satisfied and hints mysteriously of still further surprises for the following week—this time a big one.

"How do you like our music up here?" asked St. Peter.

"Well, I'll tell you," replied the new arrival, the harps all have a trifle too much rallentando in the fermate passages, and the colorature of the singers—"

"Ha! a music critic," replied St. Peter; "that's what happens when I leave the gate for a moment."

Motioning to two burly seraphim to put the unfortunate man into the elevator, St. Peter pressed the button and called: "Going Down."—Town Topics.
